

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Faulkner County Offices

Conway, Arkansas- In order to protect the general public and county employees from the Covid-19 pandemic, all Faulkner County offices are restricting public access until further notice.

“All essential county government services will be provided. We’re not closed for business, we’re just restricting public access to our office for a few days,” Judge Baker said. “We are proactively taking measures to ensure we do our part to curb the spread of the virus. This means many of our offices will meet with individuals by appointment only.”

Service appointments can be made with all county offices. For further information regarding detailed services, please contact the specific county office by phone.

“We encourage the public to call the respective office for answers to any of their questions,” Judge Baker said. “Additionally, many of the services our county provides can be accessed online.”

Many county offices will begin utilizing drop boxes in which the public can drop off documents they need filed or reviewed.

“Every office is doing their best to help the public over the phone, through drop boxes, and via e-mail,” Judge Baker said. “We are committed to serving the citizens of Faulkner County, and we will do our best to accommodate our citizens’ needs.”

The Faulkner County museum and all Faulkner County library branches will shut their doors to the public, but the library will operate curbside pickup in Conway.

“We want to encourage everyone to stay at home, if possible,” Judge Baker said. “The less we congregate, the more we can do to fight this virus. Everyone needs to do their part in order to help the community as a whole.”

Essential buildings that will remain open include, but are not limited to:

- The Sheriff’s Office will be open to the public for payments of fine. However, if you need to make a report, contact our non-emergency number at 501-328-5906. A deputy will return your call to take the report. As always, if you have an emergency dial 911.
- The Justice Building will only allow members from the general public who have been subpoenaed, those who are listed on the court docket, attorneys or their clients, those reporting to jury duty, or those approved for access by a judge.
- The Circuit Clerk, Tax Assessor, and Tax Collector will utilize drop boxes at their front entrance to facilitate public services.
- Those seeking marriage licenses should contact the County Clerk for an appointment.
